What makes you who you are?

Brief

We would like you to produce a series of six digital images about yourself, think about what makes you who you are? How are you different? What makes you tick? What are your views on the world?

We have included some images to get your creative energy going, starting researching beyond this to get a feel for how other photographers tackle the theme of identity.

If you have your own camera use it, if not a phone camera will do, this isn't about the quality of the image, it is about us gaining an understanding of you and your world. Good luck!
